

Abstract

An audible pre-recorded message announces call quality and call termination so that a mobile phone user can be alerted when the other party cannot hear him/her and also when the connection has been terminated. A button on a telephone is used to signal a bad connection to the other party.